

An unidentified National Bureau of Standards (NBS) staff member seated at the PILOT computer in 1961. Designed by NBS in 1958, this computer contained three independently programmed systems that could communicate and work together concurrently on a common problem. The PILOT has been called one of the earliest examples of multiprocessor computer architecture.

PLACE
STAMP
HERE

To see more historic NIST images visit www.nist.gov/digitalarchives.

